MONDAY EVENING, OCT. 24, 1904. Kossuth's English.

Kossuth had a remarkable mastery of English. This story shows how he strengthened his knowledge of our difficult tongue. Speaking at Concord. Mass., Kossuth wished to express the figure of the Austrian eagle rending the young freedom of Hungary. The word escaped him. Stopping for a moment in the full flight of eloquence, he asked a matter of fact American who sat near him, "What you say when man tear his coat?" "Hole," was the reply. That word did not satisfy him, and Ralph Waldo Emerson, who had overheard the question, whispered "rent," with poetic sympathy for euphony, and the stately sweep of the sentence was completed. He learned the language after his arrest in 1837, when he was sentenced in 1838 to three years' imprisonment, during a part of which he was cut off from all communication with his friends and was de-nied the use of pen and ink and even of books. In the second year he was allowed to read, but as all political books were interdicted he selected an English grammar, Walker's pronounc English grammar, Wanker's producting dictionary and Shakespeare. Without knowing a single word he began to read "The Tempest." He was engaged for a fortnight in getting through the Why Japan Has No Fence Posts. In Japan when a farmer permits a telegraph or telephone pole to be erected on his land he has made a great concession to modern reform. Only the exceedingly rich have fences around their farms in Japan, not because of the cost of the fence, but because of the value of the square inches the posts and pickets would consume. If a border is desired around a field it is customary to plant mulberry trees. The total area of ground in Japan thus devoted to the silkworm tree, which otherwise would be taken up with fences, amounts to about 190,000 acres. This has no reference to the mulberry farms and groves, the area for which is over three times as much. The fact that a Japanese farmer is forced to figure on the amount of ground a fence post would occupy and the interesting fact that the government in its statistical enumerations has had the areas covered by individual mulberry trees on farm boundaries carefully computed demon-strates the great value of arable land.

A Handwriting Expert on Poe. In an odd way a Baltimore journalist has settled for himself the still disputed question of Edgar Alian Poe's per-sonal character and habits. Having several autograph letters of Poe's, letters written in the youth, the manhood and the later life of the unhappy poet, he cut off their signatures and submitted them for analysis to a handwriting

The expert reported on them as follows: "These letters were written at different periods in the life of the same at once imaginative and methodical, firm nerves, great courage and aesthetic tastes. You ask if they point to drunkenness or alcoholism. I reply that most decidedly they do not."

A friend of the late Bishop Hunting-ton was spending a Sunday in Edin-burgh and followed the crowd to the church of a celebrated preacher. At the close of the service he said to the fine sermon." The minister, puffed up with pride, said, "Thank you, thank "But," said the Boston man, "I have heard it before; it is one of Bishop Huntington's sermons." I dare say, to be sure, but Huntington plagiarism this beats the record."

Killing a Fashion.

The muff reached its highest point in the reign of Louis XV. Then fashion declared for a cloth must instead of fur, and the furriers made a great uproar. They petitioned the pope to ex-communicate the wearer of a cloth muff, but to no purpose. Finally some ingenious merchant bribed the headsman to carry a cloth muff on execution day. The women shrank from such as-sociation, and the fur won the day.

Refreshments In Church.

Family pews were introduced at the beginning of the seventeenth century. Some of these had a table and fire place, also curtains and window blinds so as to secure the utmost privacy. This led to abuses. In some of the closed pews card playing was not uncommon, and the tedium of a long service was sometimes relieved by light refreshment.-Reliquary.

All For the Best. "Why do the roses fade slowly away?" she inquired poetically. "Well." replied the baldheaded young man, "when you think it over it's all for the best. It's more comfortable to have them fade slowly away than to go off all of a sudden, like a torpedo."
